

Resources

As outlined in the introduction, this section features some of the principal resources and models developed during the Managing the Mix project, including:

Consumer and carer resources

Education and training workshops and online package

Divisional resources

While these resources were developed at a local level, they are useful documents for adaptation to other areas. The divisional resources include:

- Divisional projects: descriptions and highlights of the 19 divisional projects

- Systems development: models of shared care and local partnerships and sustainability case studies

- Divisional training and professional development: examples of divisional training activities and programs

- Resources and tools: resources and tools produced and distributed by divisions, aimed at equipping GPs (and often other clinicians) with materials to assist in the management of this client group. Includes information and practical tools which often enhanced shared care opportunities and provided GPs with support from other agencies

- Consumer and health professional awareness: examples of divisional health promotion activities and means of engaging health professionals in comorbidity work, used to raise awareness of comorbidity among both consumers and health professionals
